Project description: people-in-rural-communities-of-south-moldova/

The EU funded project is aiming to increase the social reintegration of vulnerable and marginalised older people into Moldovan society through strengthening of civil society organisations in the rural communities of south Moldova and to facilitate their engagement with both local and national government. It focuses on social reintegration of vulnerable and marginalized older people while promoting community service and volunteerism. The previously supported project involving an experienced ageing-specific NGO in the north of the country is providing expert knowledge to an NGO in the south to support older people in rural areas.

Expected results:

- To enrich learning by having perspectives from the South and North of Moldova working together.
- To provide valuable insights into North-South diversity, which will enable having a broader perspective of issues confronting older people across the country.
- To highlight older people issues at Central/Republican level with the relevant ministries, institutional donors and civil society networks, which has begun modestly to mainstream older people issues as far as development aid and institutional reforms processes are concerned.
